Prof. Malcom Ferdinand (CNRS) will present his research, followed by a student panel and discussion.

Both an environmental engineer and a philosopher, Prof Ferdinand engages with postcolonial theory and political ecology, with a focus on the Atlantic and Caribbean. In his research, he investigates the articulations and intersections of political issues, colonial history, and ecological stakes.

Co-sponsored by the European Studies Center and the Environmental Humanities Research Seminar.

Contact Kaliane Ung (KHU3@pitt.edu) for Zoom Link and article serving as the basis of the discussion.